ANTI - SEXUAL HARASSMENT POLICY

Introduction

Consistent with HakuHodo Group values, HakuHodo India (the “Company”) is committed to maintaining a workplace free from sexual harassment.

Scope

This policy applies to all categories of employees of the Company, including permanent employees, Consultants, Management Trainees and Interns, regardless of an individual’s immigration status. The Company will not tolerate sexual harassment, if engaged in by client or by vendors or any other business associates.

Additionally, this policy applies not only while an individual is on Company premises, but also in any setting related to the individual’s employment and/or engagement with the Company (including events and/or travel outside the office).

Workplace or work-related sexual harassment constitutes discrimination and is illegal under “The Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013”. Sexual harassment is also a violation of our policies. The Company considers sexual harassment to be a form of employee misconduct, and sanctions will be enforced against employees of every level, including managers and supervisors, who engage in sexual harassment, or who allow such behavior to continue. The prohibition against sexual harassment applies equally to male and female employees, and includes harassment where the harasser and the victim are of the same sex or the opposite sex.

An employee’s failure to comply with this policy may result in appropriate remedial and/or disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

What is Sexual Harassment?

For the purposes of this policy, sexual harassment is considered unwelcome conduct which is of a sexual nature, or which is directed at an individual because of that individual’s sex when:

- (i) Such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of employment or engagement;
- (ii) Submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions affecting an individual’s employment; or

- (iii) Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment, even if the complaining individual is not the intended target of the sexual harassment.

The following are some examples of conduct that may constitute sexual harassment and that are strictly prohibited:

- Unwelcome sexual advances—whether they involve physical touching or not
- Requests for sexual favours in exchange for actual or promised job benefits, such as a favourable review, salary increase, promotion, etc.
- Touching in a way that may make an employee feel uncomfortable, such as kissing, hugging, patting, pinching or intentional brushing against another's body
- Making obscene gestures
- Displaying sexually suggestive objects, pictures, posters, cartoons, screensavers, calendars, etc.
- Sending email or voicemail messages containing sexual content or references
- Use of sexual epithets, jokes, vulgar or offensive conversations, teasing, or gossip regarding one's sex life, deficiencies, or prowess, or that of another
- Commenting about a person's physical appearance in a suggestive manner
- Inquiries into one's sexual experiences or discussion of one's sexual activities
- Sex stereotyping, i.e., actions indicating that a person's conduct or personality traits are inappropriate because they may not conform to others' ideas or perceptions about how individuals of a particular sex should act or look
- Other conduct directed toward a person because of gender or sexual orientation; or
- Other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature.

In addition to the above examples, other sexually oriented conduct that is unwelcome and has the effect of creating a workplace environment that is hostile, offensive, intimidating, or humiliating may also constitute sexual harassment.
